Richard B. Russell Library for Political Research and Studies Collection

- The Russell Library has over 150 collections from politicians, political parties, public policy organizations, federal and state appointees, and political observers and activists from modern Georgia (1900-present).
- The scope of the Library's collections provide significant documentation of the broad spectrum of political activities of modern Georgia through over 13,000 linear feet of:
 - correspondence
 - speeches
 - drafts of legislation
 - domestic and foreign policy papers
 - polling data
 - campaign materials
 - sound recordings
 - electronic records
 - photographs
 - film
 - video
 - sound recordings
 - artifacts
 - oral histories
- The collections also document the global relationships and interests formed by Georgians through political action, foreign service, trade, and other activities.
