Language and Content Note

The goal of the University of Georgia Special Collections Libraries is to describe archival collections in a manner that is honest and respectful to the individuals, organizations, and communities who create, use, and are represented in these resources. For many reasons, users may still find language in finding aids that is offensive and/or harmful for example, terms or phrases that are racist, sexist, homophobic, ableist, or otherwise demeaning to the people and communities described. See the Statement on Language in Archival Description for more information.

Abstract Or Scope:

The collection consists of period views (191 photographs and 331 slides) of locations around Athens and northeast Georgia, including structures no longer in existence as well as those still standing. Represented are university buildings, residential homes, and religious and business facilities. A considerable number of photographs of nature, particularly water and falls, are included as well as photographs of individuals and groups, both white and African-American. A small number of photographs depict Tennessee and Washington D.C. locations.
